SPORTSMANSHIP AT SOCCER

One very pleasing feature noticeable at the Hakoah game here was the fine spirit of sportsmanship shown by the non-Jewish element of the crowd at the games. We happened to sit among them and the comment which we overheard was of the nature of generous appreciation of the merits of the players without any tinge of bigotry or petty partizanship. A devotee of sports of all kinds, we cannot imagine a similar crowd at a baseball game, or even rugby, treating a foreign team, particularly a Jewish team, with the fairness and courtesy which were evident at Ulster Stadium. The Scottish and English crowd who attended the game are evidently genuine lovers of their game and lived up to the best traditions of sportsmen. Even when one has not seen a soccer game for many years, the beauty of the game and the sportsmanship of the audience wins enthusiastic interest in the sport.

GEMILUTH HASODIM

There is one institution in our community to which no one can possibly take exception. That is the Gemiluth Hasodim.

We have our poor. Poverty is economic illness. When a person is ill in body it is the function of proper therapy not merely to keep him alive in distress, but rather to rid him of his malady and, if possible, restore him to normal health. Similarly, in dealing with economic illness, it behooves us to seek to effect rehabilitation rather than the prolongation of an unhealthy state.

Ordinary charity doles out relief to the afflicted in minimum doses, just enough to keep the recipient alive. The beneficiary continues to be dependent on the handouts. Unless there be some extraneous factors not contemplated in the charitable ministrations the afflicted will never be able to regain his economic health.

And there are people who, realizing the basic imperfections of our economic system, feel a sort of repugnance for the state of affairs which causes and tolerates the degradation of beggary and pauperism. "Blessed is he that giveth," and cursed is he that taketh. There is something revolting in the trafficking of charity. It involves humiliation, a renunciation of the joy and thrill of creativeness. It implies abject fawning and slavishness; the loss of human dignity; broken backs; resignation.

Comes the institution of Gemiluth Hasodim, and offers to the needy the means of self-help. Economic activity requires the use of instruments. Money is an instrument in which is stored up a mass of economic power. Its aid is necessary to execute effective manipulation of opportunities. There are persons who for some reason or other have not been able to acquire these instruments, or have suffered them to be broken, or have lost them. Without them they are helpless. But they have sufficient energy and ambition to carry on, and establish a place for themselves if only the needed instruments were made available. Now, the Gemiluth Hasodim lends them a substantial sum of money. With this money they are given an opportunity to call into play their regenerative powers. They become active. They are not a limp burden. They retain their self-esteem as human beings.

REVITALIZING AN OLD FESTIVAL

BY RABBI FERDINAND M. ISSERMAN

Religious ceremonies have their histories. Initially fashioned by man to meet some need or to express some sentiment, they continue to live long after the need of sentiment for which they were called into being has ceased to exist. But the existence of such ceremonies will at best be precarious. Having lost their vitality and meaning petrifaction will set in. For a time the momentum of centuries of observance will carry such dying ceremonies along. They will be part of the useless baggage which the past inevitably and invariably heaps on the backs of the present. But eventually such ceremonies will be discarded into the scrap-heap, when a vigorous generation decides to relieve itself of some of the débris in its heritage. Not always, however, does this happen. A tradition-loving humanity may take the dry bones of outworn observances and by breathing into them a new spirit may revive them and give them fresh vitality and full significance.

Such was the case with the Shabuoth festival, which is celebrated seven weeks after Passover. In its origin it was an agricultural festival—a festival of the first harvest, when our primitive ancestors shouted their gratitude and praise to God for the barley and wheat and first fruits which had been gathered in from the fields. When urban life set in, and some in Israel no longer could respond to that thrill of harvesting of the first fruits, a fresh motif was added to the Shabuoth festival. It was set as the anniversary of the giving of the law at Mount Sinai. Then Shabuoth again had appeal for all Jews—artisans and industrialists, as well as farmers and shepherds—for all could rejoice in the birthday of Judaism.

It was the leaders of the Reform movement in Judaism who gave to Shabuoth its crowning glory, when they began to confirm Jewish children into the faith of their fathers on the anniversary of the giving of the Decalogue. Wherever confirmation has been introduced, the scene at Sinai's heights repeats itself as the youth of Israel, standing on the altars of a hundred synagogues, pledge their allegiance to the spirit of the Torah, and accept the covenant of the fathers. In Liberal synagogues, girls as well as boys are eligible for confirmation. For women as well as men should be informed about the principles of their faith, and girls as well as boys have religious responsibilities and are to be among those who will keep alive the spirit of the Torah.

There are but two synagogues in Canada who have a confirmation ceremony in connection with Shabuoth. But all synagogues could well institute such a ceremony. It is generally beautiful, impressive and stirring. It gives the participants a religious experience which is greatly cherished, and which has become for many one of the most precious of memories. It has a beneficent influence on the entire congregation. It undoes an injustice to the Jewish girl who is barred from the bar-mitzvah ceremony, and above all the preparation for it compels a study and evaluation of the foundations of religion. Though confirmation is the product of Reform, Orthodox synagogues could adopt it with great spiritual benefit. Confirmation has made Shabuoth a vital religious experience for our generation.

Herbert's Confectionery is a favourite in Jewish homes, because of the delicious flavour that tells that only butter is used as shortening. No lard is used at any time. Only the finest of butter, eggs, milk and other ingredients are used. Whatever your pastry needs, you will be able to choose from among the splendid assortment of cakes, French pastry, buns, raisin and seed cookies, whole wheat or white loaves of bread. Daily delivery from all three stores at 1011 Bernard, Cres. 5843; 3582 Park Avenue, Pl. 0436, or 4146 St. Denis, Bel. 5882.

Marriage enlarges the scene of happiness and miseries. A marriage of love is pleasant; a marriage of interest, easy; and a marriage where both parties meet happy. A happy marriage has in it all the pleasures of friendship, all the enjoyment of sense and reason, and indeed, all that is sweet in life.

Now this is the sum of the matter: if you will be happy in marriage, consider, love and be patient; be faithful, firm and holy.

We have been admonished on many occasions to bear one another's burdens. Let B. H. JEWISH SCOUTS PARADE

Loyalty to the British Empire and its flag was the subject of the address delivered by Rabbi H. Abramowitz, Sunday, May 29, to 250 Boy Scouts gathered for their annual synagogue parade in Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue, Kensington Avenue, Westmount. Troop colours were presented to the 67th Montreal Scout Troop which is under the auspices of the Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue. At the conclusion of the service, which was led by the cantor with full choir, this troop marched down the main aisle carrying the flags furled and with covers on. On reaching the front of the auditorium the scouts were halted in semi-circular formation, the colours were unfurled and laid on an altar of drums, and the prayers of dedication were recited by Rabbi Abramowitz. The donors, Sol Kellert and D. S. Friedman, then handed the flags to the colour party, who received them on bended knee, and the salute was sounded by a party of buglers. The flags are of silk, the King's Colour being a Union Jack with fleur-de-lys in the centre, and the troop colour a design in blue, white, and yellow, symbolical of the affiliation of the troop with the synagogue. The scouts held a short route march at the conclusion of the service, the salute being taken on the steps of the synagogue by T. H. Wardleworth, District Scout Commissioner. Others present at the saluting base were Rabbi H. Abramowitz, Major J. Armitage Ewing, K.C., Provincial Scout Commissioner; James M. Fraser, Assistant Commissioner for the Western District; Sol Kellert, D. S. Friedman, Lyon Cohen, Jacob Goldstein, Horace Friedman, D. G. Lawton, District Scoutmaster of the Western District, and Scoutmasters J. F. Porter, D. D. Trotter, F. J. Pigeon, and M. F. MacNaughton. The parade was in charge of Scoutmaster A. M. Machlovitch, and included the following Jewish Troops: 40th (Baron de Hirsch), S. M. Machlovitch; 61st (Aberdeen School), S. M. Babins; 62nd (Y.M.H.A.), A. S. Harris; 67th (Shaar Hashomayim), S. M. Kirsch; 98th (Mount Royal School), A. S. M. Spier; 120th (Fairmount School), S. M. Bierbrier; 122nd (Shaar Zion), A. S. M. Schleider, and the 35th Wolf Cub Pack (Baron de Hirsch), C. M. Tager. The two Greek troops also joined in the parade, the 108th, under A. S. M. Papason, and the 111th, under S. M. Bays.

Gedaliah Bublick, editor of the Jewish Daily News, in the concluding article of a series on problems confronting American Israel, makes the pronouncement that Reform Judaism is going to disappear and be replaced by what is known as Conservatism. Bublick, an advocate of strict Orthodoxy, seems short-sighted and overly optimistic, even considering the recent convention of the United Synagogue.

This convention at Atlantic City is said by the Orthodox to have been marked by real animation and a genuine desire to take such steps as would safeguard the future of traditional Judaism in this country. Attended by 1,000 leaders of Orthodoxy, it was the largest convention ever held by the organization. It heard that there has been an increase in the number of Orthodox synagogues and members and an expansion in territories so evident that future conventions will soon have to be held in the middle west for the convenience of the largest number of delegates. Keen interest on the part of the laymen is reported and the conventional "new era" was duly heralded by Rabbi Samuel L. Cohen, executive director.

In his address Rabbi Cohen asked his hearers to visualize the stupendous task which faces American Israel: The centre of Jewish gravity is shifting to this country where Jews enjoy material prosperity and political freedom. European Jews are too exhausted in every way to uphold the old tradition and so the leadership once theirs must be assumed here. The task of American Israel, then, is to take over the supreme command of world Jewry. For this purpose the synagogue must be made the force and influence in helping American Israel to find its soul in order to be worthy enough to be the world centre of traditional Judaism, etc., etc.

Small wonder the rabbi exhorts his delegates to try and visualize the task their cause must take over. He might better have asked them whether, worthy or not, American Israel really wants to be the world centre of traditional Judaism. There are indications that American Israel, bereft of European immigration, will not be Orthodox at all so many years hence, much less be "worthy" enough to be a world centre for traditional Judaism. Bublick believes that although Orthodoxy in America has made little headway so far, it is in the Orthodox minority that is vested whatever hope American Israel has. When he claims that Reform Judaism will pass and Conservatism take its place, he is clinging to the scraps of Orthodoxy. But Conservatism only saves the scraps for the nonce. Every new Conservative synagogue, unwilling to stay with the past or to break with it entirely, means a prop under Reform and a nail in the coffin of Orthodoxy. The trouble is that the Conservatives don't stay Conservative. The next step for them is Reform, the departure from traditional observance.

Not only the United Synagogue but American Jewish religious strength generally shows growth if the addition of institutions and activities is a measuring rod. The numbers of religious schools is increasing, there are four comparatively new rabbinical seminaries, teachers' institutions, synagogue centers, Temple Sisterhoods and Brotherhoods, and all sorts of young people's organizations, auxiliaries and associations connected with the synagogue and many varieties of Jewish agencies. These are common to Reform, Conservatism and Orthodoxy. They spell neither the doom of Reform nor the supremacy of Orthodoxy.

If American Israel is elected to carry on the torch of traditional Judaism because the European Jews can't do it any longer, nothing less will do than for American Israel to first find its soul, according to the United Synagogue director. That takes the Lord alone knows what. In America the twentieth century is the twentieth century if not, indeed, the twenty-first already. The pressure of this environment upon the sixteenth century torch of traditional Judaism must finally extinguish it.

The survival of Reform Judaism appears more likely than that of any. Far from passing it seems to fit this environment very well. True enough, Liberal Judaism needs liberalizing, its pews are empty, the pulpit in many instances is so ineffectual spiritually that it has become nothing more than a lecture platform for fiction reviewers, and many Jews go to temple to be entertained rather than to be religiously renewed. But those empty pews are paid for and the necessity for a Jewish officiator is clearly recognized. Millions of dollars magnificently invested may not represent religious feeling as much as race-consciousness, but they certainly do not suggest indifference to the existence of the synagogue. So long as churches of other kinds have their place in the social life of this country there will be a Jewish church. The Reform Jewish synagogue clashes as little with the American setting as does the Unitarian church or the Episcopalian.

This fact and not the Jewish soul, so-called, safeguards the survival of Reform. To be of the Reform Jewish persuasion is to follow lines of least resistance. It is a faith comfortably unfettering, as notoriously uncomplicated as it is substantial and entrenched. As far as formal affiliation is concerned, to be a Reform Jew is the easiest thing in the world for a Jew to be if he is going to believe anything. One day is like another, untroubled by ceremonials or restrictions. One can subscribe forever more to this neat, orderly, subdued faith which exacts so little. Yes, the survival in the long run of Reform Judaism over Orthodoxy is being helped by the inborn human tendency to avoid too much annoyance.

"We decreed a holiday"

When we inaugurated our super-speed 24-hour family wash service we virtually presented each Toronto housewife with one extra day each week, because that is just what it amounts to. Our return was immediate in the shape of such an increased volume of business that we were compelled to double the size of our premises. In addition to super-speed we have other services — all for family wash — one of which must surely meet your household requirements and also your household budget limitations. We'd be glad to explain. Phone to-day.

Editorial

Who is there, then, that can quarr with this type of constructive relief?

It is a sign of our communal puerility that our Gemiluth Hasodim—generally appreciated as it is—is still financially so frail. According to the report submitted at the last annual meeting the total operating capital only amounts to some twelve thousand dollars!

During the past year some five hundred loans were made. The scanty resources were made to go far. With a worth-while capital at its disposal the organization could become a real factor in the life of our community. Many cases that are now the subjects of the pitying attention of the charity agencies could be propped up to a perch of independence if the Gemiluth Hasodim had a richer treasury.

Poverty and poor there will always be with us. As individuals and as a community we must recoocile ourselves to this factor. It becomes our business to devise the most economical and at the same time the most effective methods of coping with the problems. By having an adequately endowed lending agency, we will be able to give help in many instances at a less costly price. The capital employed in lending is not given up. It is cheaper to lend than to give. In addition we call into play the active co-operation of the beneficiaries in solving their difficulties rather than having them as dead weight. And we save the self-respect of the recipients.

The Toronto community will have to find a way of increasing the endowment fund of its Gemiluth Hasodim. The sponsors of this organization have apparently been too modest in pressing its claim on the community. The organization deserves more support than it has been getting.

Wash RAYON this safe way

RAYON is more sensitive to laundering than any other fabric—never wring it, never twist it, never rub it with cake soap. Rayon is most fragile when wet.

As you might expect, Rayon should be washed only in mild, pure Lux suds—dipping it gently up and down as you do silks.

YOU do not save money by not taking ice until the heat of summer has arrived. Nights may be cool at this time of year, but many days are warm and even hot.

Such changes of temperature are bad for food. Meat, milk, butter, eggs and other perishable foods lose that delicate flavor which only a fresh condition can preserve.

In a good refrigerator, ice will keep a safe, even temperature—and cost but a few cents per day.

G'Milath Chasodim Association Election

The fourth annual meeting of the Toronto Hebrew Free Loan Association was held Sunday afternoon, May 29, at the Zionist Institute, 206 Beverley Street. Sam Kronick, president of the Association, presided. Mr. Kronick, in his presidential report, stated that due to the efforts of the Association, the demands upon the Federation and other charitable organizations are considerably decreased. He extended the thanks of the Association to I. Brodey, who had established two funds, one for $1,000 in memory of his daughter, Lillian Greisman, and one for $500, in memory of the late Jacob and Flora Draimin; and also to the Lipson family, who established a fund in memory of the late Morris Lipson. J. I. Oelbaum, executive director of the Association, in his reports, said: The directors of the Association meet every week in the office of the Association for the purpose of dealing with the applications for loans. The maximum amount of any individual loan is $200. The capital of the Association shows a substantial increase, inasmuch as the capital at April 1, 1926, was $8,714.35, and at present is approximately $12,000.00. During the past year 511 applications were received, and 481 loans were granted. From the general fund, $33,796.00 was granted. From the Brodey fund, $2,475.00. From the Lipson fund, $525. Total loans for the year, $36,796.00. During the previous year $25,021.50 was granted, showing an increase of $11,774.50 in loans for the year. The average amount of each loan was $76.50, and the turnover of capital re loans granted equals 3.96 times, an absolute record for work in an organization of this kind. Since the inception of the Free Loan Association, in November, 1922, 1,578 applications have been received, and 1,340 loans were granted, totalling $94,861.50. A vote of thanks was extended Sam Harris for his work in connection with investigations. The following were unanimously elected directors: Louis Adelberg, H. Birnbaum, Isaac Brodey, Harry Clavir, Abraham Cohen, David Dunkelman, Charles Garfunkel, Louis Gelber, M. Gelber, Sam Harris, Norman Helpert, Sam Hollinger, Samuel Kronick, David Lavine, Nathan Margulies, Elly Marks, Herman Mendelson, M. Michaelson, Jack Perkins, Nathan Phillips, Dr. M. Pivnick, Elias Pullan, Max Rosen, A. Rosenthal, Harry Rosenthal, Joseph Schwartz, Nathan Smith, G. Solway, M. Weinstock, Barnet Weiss. Election of officers at the first meeting of the board of directors, Sunday, June 5.

Four hundred and eighty-one loans were granted by the Association proper; forty-two loans were granted from the Brodey Fund; nine loans from the Lipson Fund.

The loans granted assisted needy individuals of the following occupations: fruit stores, tailors, fruit peddlers, second-hand stores, rag peddlers, grocers, operators, confectioners, dry goods peddlers, shoe repairers, watch repairers, jewellers, roofers and tinsmiths, shoe stores, pressers, dry goods stores, cleaning and pressing stores, junk peddlers, poultry [illegible], barbers, restaurants, bricklayers, merchants, housewives, cattle buyers, ice peddlers, blacksmiths, chazonim, sofers, cake bakers, shochtim, metal dealers, creamery stores, carpenters, slipper manufacturers, plumbers, butchers, costumers, coal dealers, smallware peddlers, collectors, rug peddlers, rag assorters, journalists, cutters, machinists, delicatessen stores, agents, movie houses, finishers, cartage and express business, miscellaneous peddlers, tanners, travellers, bookkeepers, porters, pants manufacturers, dress manufacturers, shoe lasters, printers, clothing stores, bookbinders, dressmakers, jobbers, general stores, candy makers, electrical draughtsman, domestic, coopers, artists.

NORTHERN ONTARIO CANADA

Northern Ontario, now open for settlement at fifty cents per acre, contains millions of acres of the finest agricultural land in the world. Its resources in lumber, minerals, water, power, fish, game and scenery are immense. The land calls for men to cultivate it, and in return will give health, comfort and prosperity.

What settlers say of the soil, climate, farming and forest life, is told in a most attractive booklet issued under the direction of the Honourable John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario. Full instructions in regards to acquiring a title to these rich agricultural lands are also given.
